

Dockside gambling

Franckiewicz awaits reply from Attorney General's office

BY JANET MCQUEEN
Sen. Vic Franckiewicz has requested an opinion from Attorney General Mike Moore to clarify the limits of waters where dockside gambling may take place.

Interest in the operation of cruise vessel gambling in Hancock County has been expressed to Franckiewicz and Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward Favre by constituents.

Dockside gambling was legalized in the Mississippi Gaming Control Act which was passed during a special legislative session this summer.

Earlier in the regular session, Senate Bill 2744 paved the way for gambling on cruise ships "underway in the waters within the State of Mississippi, which lie adjacent to the State of Mississippi south of the three most southern counties..."

Following the deletion of the word "underway" in special session, legalized gambling became a reality.

According to Franckiewicz, the wording remains ambiguous and "contradictory on its face" in that the waters in the state cannot also be south of the state.

The main issue centers on whether gambling is legal in bays in addition to the Mississippi Sound; more specifically: —Whether gambling would be allowed on the various rivers, streams and bayous in the coast counties;

—Whether it would be legal in St. Louis Bay and other bays, and how far into the bays legal gambling may extend;

—Whether gambling would be legal in artificially created inlets or harbors connecting to waters, which are themselves legal locations for dockside gambling.

"This issue is important because permanently moored cruise vessels will have to be docked in protected waters, which are often dug out of upland areas," wrote Franckiewicz.

According to Favre, the Attorney General's office must consider the intentions of the legislators as they prepared the bill.

"The most liberal intention I have heard uses the north border of the three southern counties (Hancock, Harrison, Jackson) with dockside gambling being legal in any body of water; the most conservative would restrict gambling to below the barrier islands south of the counties," said Favre.

Franckiewicz anticipates a wait of several weeks before an opinion is rendered on the matter.

John Bezou and Captain Cotton

Prancing to the beat of a different drummer

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

This week, 14-year-old John Bezou of Bay St. Louis will be stepping high to the music of the United States Pony Club National Dressage Competitions in Lexington, Va.

Dressage events consist of patterned and freeform maneuvers, by slight movement of hands, legs and weight.

Judging in dressage is based not only on the eloquence of the dance by man and horse, but on the entire presentation of rider and beast which weighs with utmost importance.

"The judges continuously check, all day long. They check the horse for dirt and check his legs, making sure they are alright. They check for safe shoes; everything must be clean and neat," explained Bezou.

The road to Virginia has been one of hard work. Nearly five years ago, when Bezou first showed interest in riding, he approached trainer Aurio Hessemer with the will but not the means.

Private lessons can be expensive, especially for a 10-year-old boy. Hessemer agreed to take him on as a working student. Bezou does the work of a stable hand to compensate for his weekly instructions.

Aboard 'Captain Cotton', Bezou will compete against the high standards of the equestrian world.

Bezou won top honors this past March in Hattiesburg against horsemen from Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and the Florida panhandle. This enabled him to qualify with four others to compete in Virginia.

As a team, the five team members meet and work together from 6 a.m. until 6 p.m. for the three to four days of competition.

"It's not an individual thing; everybody helps everybody," said Bezou. "If someone else's horse needs water, you get it. If a horse needs to be brushed, you do it."

Bezou's vision of the future remains four hooves to the ground, for he "definitely" aims to achieve trainer status, thereby becoming a complete horseman.

More property recovered in burglary investigation

BY TRACI BONNEY

The St. Tammany parish, Pear River County and Hancock County sheriff's offices recovered stolen property valued at approximately $100,000

Thursday in Slidell, La.

Hancock Sheriff's Investigator Nathan Hoda said Hancock law enforcement personnel contacted St. Tammany officials and obtained a search warrant for a mini-warehouse. The recovered property was taken to Covington, La., for inventory.

The property seizure is the latest step in an investigation involving sheriff's office officials in Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties. Thus far, the investigation has led to the arrests of five suspects on burglary charges and the seizure of a large amount of property.

Being held in the Pearl River County jail are Brett Alexander Jacobsen, 18, of Poplarville; Richard Brown, 30, of Slidell, La.; and Theresa Gillen, 20, also of Slidell. In custody at the Harrison County jail is Ricky Dale Shaw, 21. A 16-year-old juvenile is also in detention in Harrison County.

Hancock County Sheriff's Investigator Nathan Hoda said Friday that three suspects remain at large.

Hoda estimated the value of property recovered earlier in the week at about $200,000.

ASRM meetings planned locally

NASA has completed its Supplemental Final Environmental Impact Statement (SFEIS) prepared for the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) test program at the John C. Stennis Space Center.

The report is available to area libraries for public review and will also be distributed to key governmental leaders, universities and environmental groups.

The document also contains an executive summary which provides an overview of the report.

Copies of the executive summary and informational fact sheets will be placed at libraries in the vicinity of Stennis Space Center (SSC) for the public.

NASA published the Final Environmental Impact Statement (FEIS) for the ASRM test program in March 1989. Later that month the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers issued more comprehensive procedures to identify and delineate wetlands.

Following the Record of Decision on the estimated wetlands impacts at SSC, NASA has developed detailed construction impacts and exhaust product deposition information of aluminum oxide and hydrogen chloride.

In support of the National Environmental Policy Act, NASA decided to make this information available to the public through the SFEIS, which contains the revised facility layout and plans to construct and operate the ASRM static test project in an environmentally safe and compatible manner.

The SFEIS also addresses other public concerns raised following the release of the FEIS, ASRM—Page 5A

Evelyn Yarborough's reflection is visible as she begins a 'Back to School' scene on the windows of the Hancock County Tax Collector/Assessor's office, Main Street, Bay St. Louis. Throughout the year, she paints scenes of the season at that office as well as the office of Dr. Sidney Chevis, her brother-in-law. The artist is the daughter of Edward Murtagh, and reports she enjoys painting and donates her talents at the offices as well as at her children's schools. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

Hancock students expected to start school as scheduled

BY TRACI BONNEY

Despite gloomy predictions earlier this week, students going to the new Hancock Junior/Senior High School will most likely start the school year on time, according to assistant superintendent Eddie Danzey. Nat Mixon, project manager for contractor Lincoln Builders of Ruston, La., told the board at Monday's meeting that recent inclement weather might delay the finishing of grounds work needed at the new school.

The board, after hearing Mixon's report, decided to wait before rescheduling the start of the school year to see if the weather would be dry enough for work to continue.

Danzey said Friday that the board decision was a wise one, since the weather has been fair this week.

"We're doing everything we can to get the work finished on time," he commented. "The buildings are all punched out, except for the gym part of Building D. The visitors' and teachers' parking lots are finished, and the contractors are getting ready to pour the driveway and students' parking lot in the next couple of days."

The school, a $10 million facility, will house students in grades seven through 12. Construction on the school started in February 1988 after bonds were issued in May 1987.

Sue Dean, secretary for the superintendent, said the new school will be the site of an orientation Tuesday, Aug. 14, 8:30 to 10 a.m., for personnel from all the district's schools.

The orientation starts the district's staff development period, which will continue throughout the week at the school.

Governor appoints Mickey Ladner to head state's narcotics division

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Bay St. Louis native Phillip N. "Mickey" Ladner, 49, was appointed director of the Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics in an announcement by Gov. Ray Mabus on Friday.

Ladner moves to the bureau after having spent 24 years with the Highway Patrol. He held the rank of major with the patrol before being appointed to the narcotics bureau. He served as chief inspector of the southern enforcement region of the patrol since 1988 and was also director of the Traveling Criminal Apprehension Program.

He replaces Maj. Jerry Dettman, acting director since 1989. Dettman will be deputy director and chief of law enforcement.

Ladner said Saturday that he was elated at being the governor's selection because Mabus had interviewed at least seven persons for the position.

Mabus said in a prepared statement, "These two men have been in the front lines in Mississippi's war on drugs from two different areas of expertise."

"Mickey has been intercepting drugs from motor vehicles traveling our highways and Jerry has been developing long-range drug cases. Combining their talents will give us a team to implement the most effective campaign against illegal narcotics ever to be waged in Mississippi."

Ladner is a 1958 graduate of St. Stanislaus and attended Jeff Davis and Hinds Community colleges and the University of Virginia.

He is the son of Mrs. Nolan S. (Ethel) Ladner of Bay St. Louis and the late Mr. Ladner.

The new director resides in Long Beach and is married to the former Sherry Anne Brown of Lucedale. They have two daughters, Emily Ann, 14, and Sarah Tomlin, 11.

Ladner has also worked with the Mississippi Crime Laboratory and the narcotics bureau as an undercover officer. He was assigned to the patrol's Domestic Marijuana Eradication Program in 1983 and the Criminal Investigation Bureau as an investigator from 1975 until 1981.

He became director of the Criminal Investigation Bureau's southern region in 1984 and enforcement commander of the Gulfport District in 1986.

"I've wanted to work over here a long time," Ladner said during a news conference at the narcotics bureau's headquarters in southern Hinds County.

Ladner said he planned no immediate changes in the bureau.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Your greatest moment

Put your mind in gear, test your memory, and name what you consider your greatest moment in life. You may need a bit of time and thought to arrive at your decision, but attempt it anyway.

You have already given yourself away in regard to your most intimate feelings if your mind has quickly chosen an experience like the electricity of finding the boy/girl of your dreams, total absorption in the magic of a romantic moment, the serendipity of falling into a huge fortune, the enchantment of an exciting trip or a dream vacation, the high of an unbelievable personal exploit in sports, the thrill of a fabled moment in amateur or professional sports, an explosive adventure in politics, a mystical or feverish moment of transport in the trance of a gospel song or in the midst of an inspired worship service in church.

However, you may have put on the brakes and complained:

"That's a case of apples and oranges. Greatest by which criteria, and greatest in which area of human life and relations?"

Admittedly, the question is general and open to semantic confusion. Suppose we narrow the question down by eliminating certain considerations.

Whether we consider the physical, mental, emotional or spiritual part of you, we shall bypass your most pleasurable moment, your most exciting moment, your most emotional moment, your most awe-inspiring moment. That leaves, more or less, the question of your most meaningful moment.

Try your memory some more, and attempt to list in order from one to ten the greatest moments of your life in terms of meaning.

We will not put any limitations on the way in which you measure these moments or put weight on their value. Once more, your values and criteria will tell volumes about you.

"Beauty is in the eye of the beholder," you may say, "and so is meaning in the mind of the one who experiences."

Sure. Still, for a Christian, there is definitely a bottom line of meaning, and it is on the bottom line that I challenge you to grill yourself on what you consider the most meaningful moment of your life.

"That is no contest!" you may want to answer again. "That has to be the moment of my conversion to God; the time when I embraced Jesus as my Savior!"

That sounds like a great answer, and it is a moment without which none of the great succeeding moments would be possible or worth anything. Notwithstanding, that is not what Jesus will congratulate you for at the end of your sojourn on earth. Jesus will not mention your conversion or your embracing him as your Savior. Rather, his observation will be ridiculously simple and direct:

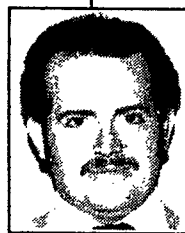

"Come! You have my Father's blessing! Inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the creation of the world! For I was hungry and you gave me food."

"I was thirsty and you gave me drink. I was a stranger and you welcomed me, naked and you clothed me. I was ill and you comforted me, in prison and you came to visit me... As often as you did it for one of my least brothers, you did it for me" (Mt. 25: 34-40).

This is an alarming but marvelous revelation in the life of one who calls herself/himself a Christian. What is means in short is that the spine-tingling, the crowd-pleasing spectacular, the romantic and fabulous are not the greatest moments of your life.

Your greatest moments are invariably the simplest, most basic ones: addressing the spiritual and material needs of the wounded and helpless, whether within or without the bosom of your family.

Physical healing today

LOOKING INSIDE

By Pastor Bob
Guidry, Jr.

We in the United States of America don't need someone to come along and tell us we are a blessed country. It is easy to see that we are the most comfortable people in the world.

We feel very secure with our great arsenal of defense weaponry, and we have many institutions to help us feel safe in areas other than national security.

We have high-tech security systems to protect our homes and cars, hospitals and doctors to protect our health, and insurance to protect us from bankruptcy when we have to use the services of a hospital or doctor.

Years ago, before the great hospitals and great insurance that you must have to use the hospitals, people put their trust in God to heal them, and they were healed.

Today we, for the most part, don't believe God does heal, and if we dare to believe that he can, then we are uncertain that it is his will to do so in our particular case.

The Bible says in Psalm 119:89, "Forever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven." In Malachi 3:6 it says, "For I am the Lord, I change not."

It is plain to see that whatever God has done in the past, he is still doing today. The Bible again says in Hebrews 13:8, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and forever."

Whatever Jesus did in the past, he is still doing today, and will still be doing tomorrow.

Acts 10:38 records: "How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good and healing all who were oppressed of the devil" (italics added).

Jesus is still going about and healing all who are oppressed of the devil. Many people were healed Wednesday at Harvest Time Church, and we see God heal people of all manner of diseases on a regular basis.

Has the devil oppressed you with sickness? Jesus will heal you and deliver you today.

"And the power of the Lord was present to heal them." — Luke 5:17.

"MOTHER" WADDLES

For more than 30 years, the Reverend Charleszetta ("Mother") Waddles has been a source of comfort and hope for hundreds of thousands of impoverished, unemployed and homeless people in Detroit.

Each year—without government money or grants of any kind—her Perpetual Mission helps provide food, clothing and emergency funds for as many as 100,000 needy children and adults.

The accomplishments of this extraordinary woman are the focus of "Ya Done Good," a half-hour documentary airing at 10:30 p.m., Wednesday, August 15, on the Mississippi Educational Television Network.

"Ya Done Good" follows Mother Waddles on a typical day, which is often nonstop and lasts 16 hours or more. In addition to her work at the Perpetual Mission, Waddles, an ordained minister of the Pentecostal Church, is seen fundraising on her home phone and visiting a local support group for ex-offenders.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Congratulations and best wishes are in order for Bay St. Louis native Mickey Ladner upon his being named director of the Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics.

Ladner is well known in Hancock County as well as throughout the state because of his many years of work with the State Highway Patrol.

Among his many duties as a state trooper has been his involvement with narcotics. I have covered several cases myself in which he was involved in investigations here in Hancock County.

I cannot think of a more deserving person for the director's position.

On Saturday mornings one of my regular stops is the Hancock County Farmers Market by the Civic Center on Longfellow Road.

It feels just like a family meeting every Saturday morning and is the same, I am told, on Wednesday mornings at the market.

Most of those who stop in to make purchases are known by the local farmers who offer some of the freshest vegetables in town.

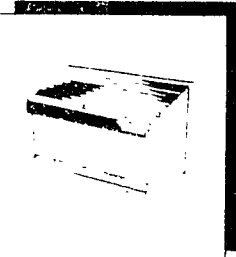

A person can purchase all types of vegetables, many fruits, jams, jellies, potted plants and shrubs, cakes, cookies and even seafood items at times.

Some of the vendors have been coming to the market at the fairground since it opened many years ago.

If you haven't been there yet, I suggest you give it a try one Wednesday or Saturday morning.

Farm folks rise early and the market usually sets up at about 7 a.m. and vendors are around until about noon.

See you at the Hancock County Farmers Market. I know the local farmers will like to see you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

School board members watch budget carefully

To the Editor:

This is in response to a letter to the editor of The Sea Coast Echo, July 19, by John Borge of Lakeshore.

We would like to give information that is pertinent to the statement concerning "pinched pennies."

The letter stated the schools have not saved pennies, but spent, according to his opinion, unwarranted sums of money.

It was stated for an eight-room addition to Gulfview schools, we paid almost $400,000. The fact is that we received five bids for the Gulfview building, ranging from $309,264 as low bid, to a high of $386,000. This building contains 10,000 square feet and, if calculated, the resulting cost was less than $31 per square foot.

It was further stated a classroom only contained four walls, a ceiling and a floor. This building was designed specifically for kindergarten and first grade students. It contains a restroom, a kitchen and a student drinking fountain in each classroom. Both the classrooms and hallways are carpeted, centrally heated, air cooled, and contain a modern communication system, water, and fire alarm system. But most importantly, it contains our most precious possession, our children!

In addition to the $309,264, the building constructed a concrete driveway, covered walkways and corrected drainage problems that had existed for years. The cost for these improvements was $66,300.

Architectural fees of $19,722 also have to be included.

In every project that this school board undertakes, we seek bids for architectural fees, engineering fees and other fees associated with construction. We have always awarded these contracts based upon lowest and best bid. The bid for the entire project was awarded to the architect who bid 5.25 percent (usually fees are between 6 and 8 percent of construction cost).

The total cost of the Gulfview project was $395,286 ($309,264 + $66,300 + $19,722).

We and the Gulfview community are very proud of the building improvements that have taken place on the Gulfview campus during the past three years.

We do not take this as a joking matter. We are very serious and conscientious individuals who are trying to get the most out of every tax dollar (and "penny").

Our board meetings are open to the public and we encourage all concerned citizens to attend and get first-hand information on all projects that Hancock County has implemented or plans to implement.

Sincerely,
The Hancock County Board of Education
Frank Miller, District 1
Barbara Franklin, District 2

Rod and reel fishermen not getting a fair shake

To the Editor:

I would like to bring to the attention of citizens and sports fishermen my concern of what is happening in our Gulf waters.

I have fished in these waters for some 40 years, and I don't think sports fishermen are getting a fair shake.

BMR (Bureau of Marine Resources) is running up and down the beach writing tickets and arresting people for having eight or nine undersized trout in their possession, (legally five undersized trout is the limit). A fisherman with rod and reel has a lot harder time wiping out our fish resources than those who set gill nets and operate pogey boats.

This would be like the sheriff's office looking all over town for some little boy's stolen football and forgetting about the real problems they have.

Fishermen, call your state representative and let's remind these people who pays for boat registrations and who buys fishing licenses each year.

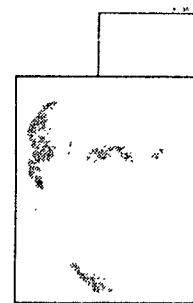

Above all, we are American citizens and taxpayers.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Your library has the most information in town

If you wanted to pick the building in your town which houses the most power, it wouldn't be the city hall, or the biggest bank on main street. It would be the library.

Knowledge, it has been said, is power. If you don't know a subject yourself, there's a world of information awaiting you inside the door of the library.

This month, there's new attention being focused around Mississippi on the treasure house which exists in our libraries, and new challenges being tackled by librarians.

Five regional meetings are being held on the campuses of community colleges aimed at increasing awareness of the public, government officials and business leaders in the services offered by libraries and to discuss ways of making those services even better.

The first was held last Saturday at Pearl River Community College, Poplarville for Region 5. On Aug. 18, meetings will be held for Region 2 at Mississippi Delta Community College, Moorhead, and Region 3, at East Central Community College, Decatur. On Aug. 25, Region 1 will meet at Itawamba Community College campus, Tupelo, and Region 4 at Copiah-Lincoln Community College, Wesson.

All of these regional meetings are preliminary to the 1991 Mississippi Conference on Libraries and Information Services (McLIS) to be held Jan. 11 and 12 in Jackson.

McLIS will select delegates and frame issues to be presented at the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services in Washington next July 9-13. This will be the first such White House conference since 1979, called under a 1988 Congressional act.

Library forces are striving to enlist wide public support of McLIS to help re-enforce the role of libraries in helping to solve Mississippi's problems in illiteracy, education and economic growth.

"As Mississippi's libraries continue to grow and improve, we can't relax our efforts in bringing the best possible services to the community," said Davide M. Woodburn, director of the Mississippi Library Commission, which is overseeing McLIS.

"This is a crucial time for helping to strengthen libraries and literacy throughout the state," Woodburn said.

Focal points of the regional, state and national library conferences will be on literacy, economic productivity and democracy, he said. Delegates to McLIS and the White House Conference must represent library professionals, government officials, lay persons or library trustees.

Mississippi has a total of 950 libraries, of which 239 are public libraries, and 503 are in public schools. The remainder are in universities, colleges, private schools or private libraries.

A survey conducted last year indicated that over 1,000,000 Mississippians made use of the services offered through libraries.

Of some 30,000 users who responded to questionnaires, 82 percent said they had used the library for checking out books in the past few months. Forty-four percent got information from librarians or used reference books in the library.

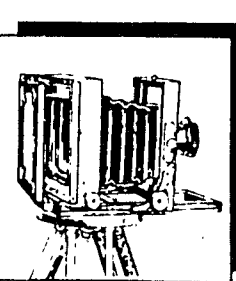

Almost half of the library users surveyed were between 25 and 44 years of age, approximately the national figure. Only 14 percent of the Mississippi users were 65 years of age or older.

There are about 13,250,000 volumes in libraries around the state, 5 million of which are in public libraries and another 5 million in university and college libraries. School libraries account for 1.5 million volumes.

As library professionals are keenly aware, financial support for libraries has depended almost entirely on funds from the public sector. More and more, they will be searching for alternative funding from such sources as gifts, service charges, and contract services to specific organizations.

Recently, former Gov. William Winter pointed out that one librarian summed up the basic value of the library thusly: "Illiteracy is the ultimate form of censorship."

And as Henry Ward Beecher once said: "A library is not a luxury, but one of the necessities of life."

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

A plea for help

They were pleading for help. Personnel executives from three of Mississippi's major employers were pleading for help from the state's high school vocational counselors.

The problem: graduates coming from the high schools and vocational schools of Mississippi are not prepared for the workplace.

The plea was offered at a statewide meeting of vocational counselors on the Mississippi State University campus a few days ago.

The problems were identified: lack of communication skills, lack of reading comprehension, lack of mathematical skills, lack of discipline, lack of loyalty among students moving from our schools into the labor force.

The employers were all singing the same song.

Employers from across Mississippi have joined in the chorus. They need help, and they need it now.

The future of Mississippi's economic advancement depends upon the response to this universal plea for help.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

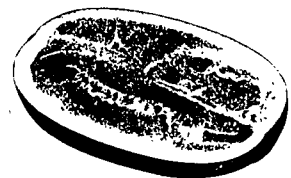

By Katy

A slice of watermelon on a sizzling summer day is among my favorite treats, so you may be sure that I am taking fullest advantage these days of the special prices on melons at our area supermarkets! Hope that you are, also!

And, after you've feasted and perhaps, at least the younger members of the family have had a good face-washing or watermelon "fight," you may have some left over, at least the rind, which makes tasty pickles. And, the smaller bits and pieces make a tasty fruit cup or other dessert, and so on. For instance:

WATERMELON CUP

2 cups diced watermelon
1 cup sherry
Granulated sugar
Sprinkle sugar over the melon pieces, pour the sherry over and refrigerate for an hour or so, for a tasty finale to a light summer supper. Increase quantities, of course, as needed.
And, for a good side dish at lunch or dinner time, try:

BRAISED WATERMELON RIND

6 cups watermelon rind, cubed
3 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Dashes of pepper and salt to taste

Trim the green skin from the rind, leaving a little of the rosy pink meat. Cut into small cubes, approximately an inch, to make approximately six cups. In a heavy saucepan, combine the melon cubes with barely enough water to cover the bottom of your skillet, adding dash of salt.

Cover and simmer for 15 or 20 minutes, or until the rind is tender, then drain well and add the butter, along with pepper to your taste. (Six servings).

And, a variation: Fry two or three slices of bacon until crisp, remove from the skillet and reserve. Add a handful of chopped onion to the skillet, brown lightly, then add three or four cups, as you wish, of shredded watermelon rind, from which you've trimmed the green skin and pink meat.

Cook over low heat for several minutes, covered, until barely, barely tender but still a bit crunchy. Season with salt and pepper, garnish with the bacon, crumbled. (Four servings)

Or, just devour the melon at the first sitting!

Fish and other seafood—that's the order of the day, or at least the dinner hour at my house these sultry days. Broiled, baked, fried or sauteed, fish is tasty—especially our own Mississippi farm-raised catfish.

And, with catfish offered at good prices at fish markets and supermarkets, you can afford to indulge in a good catfish dinner or supper! Catfish, as most of us on the Coast know, isn't just for frying; it can hold its own in tantalizing taste with the flounder, trout or whatever, don't you think?

In fact, today I'm going to cook Catfish Pecan—catfish fillets lightly dusted with flour, then sauteed in butter, with pecan pieces, and with splashes of white wine added to the pan and swirled and stirred around to make a tasty sauce. With fresh lemon slices on the side, of course!

Or, you might want to use slivered almonds, as in the traditional trout amandine. Choose whole dressed catfish, or catfish fillets or catfish nuggets; they're all delicious, however you cook them.

In the beef department, boneless chuck roasts are on sale, along with boneless top and bottom round steaks, just waiting to be seasoned and braised slowly to tasty tenderness, or cooked whatever other way suits you and your household.

Fryer breasts are another good buy, as are leg quarters, also turkey wings. And, here's a quick seasoning trick I've been using recently, courtesy of the Karo Syrup people:

Mix equal amounts of Karo Light or Dark Corn Syrup and ketchup and brush on whole chicken or chicken halves or pieces during the last 20 minutes' grilling, broiling or baking. This is also good on ham, ribs, chops and burgers.

Mustard, soy sauce or orange juice concentrate may be substituted in equal parts for the ketchup, say the Karo company cooks. I haven't tried those other combinations yet, but I'm sure that I'll be doing so; will let you know how I like 'em.

Other good buys this week: Bananas and plums, along with seedless red and white grapes

Cabbage, tomatoes, russett potatoes, garden-fresh greens
Canned tomatoes and tomato sauce, canned peas and other vegetables

Turkey wings, ground turkey

Grant will fund adult literacy program

The Hancock County Library System has received a Job Partnership in the amount of $53,211 through the State Department of Education to fund the library system's Adult Education Literacy Program for Hancock County.

The library system will supplement the grant with $51,701 in kind matching funds. The funds will operate the program through June 30, 1990.

According to library director Diana Wusnack, who serves as literacy project director, the program serves out-of-school youths and adults, 16 years and older who wish to improve their reading, writing and mathematics skills. It uses a combination of one-on-one tutoring, small group instruction and video and computer instruction.

Classes are designed to teach reading through GED preparation. English classes are available for non-English speaking persons.

The library system's Adult Education Program will work through any church, school, business, or other organization which is a program to meet the needs of the group in improving skills in reading, writing and mathematics.

More information on the program is available by contacting Wusnack or Ruth Krebs, literacy program coordinator, at the City-County Library at 467-5282.

SWEEPSTAKES

Every week our circular will contain a brain-teasing sports question. Come to your local K mart where you will find the correct answers on in-store signs. Find sweepstakes entry forms at the Service Desk. Each week there's a new question, a new chance to win.

ENTER EACH WEEK FOR EACH WEEK'S DRAWING!

Your correct entry makes you eligible for instant prizes awarded every 15 minutes on Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m. One correct entry per store will be chosen at 11 a.m. each Saturday and entered into the national Grand Prize Sweepstakes. National sweepstakes winners will be drawn after Sept. 8, the end of the promotion. No purchase necessary. Void where prohibited.

See store for contest rules and details.

GIFTS IN KIND AMERICA

K mart has teamed up with Gifts In Kind America* for a brand new program. From Aug. 5 thru Sept. 8, a school supply drop box will be at each K mart store. Donate new or almost-new school supplies. Your gifts will be distributed to needy schools and agencies benefiting children across America.
